

MALTON SCHOOL 2006 onwards

THE FUTURE

Robert Williams was appointed to succeed David Roberts, and took up his post in September 2006. He had previously been deputy at Temple Moor School in Leeds, and prior to that head of sixth form at Fulford School in York. An historian by training, he readily encouraged and supported the completion and publication of this book, and has a strong interest in maintaining the traditions and historical roots of the school.

The school continues to develop and move forward. With rising enrolments, ever improving exam success at all levels, cooperative development with the other Ryedale schools, and building plans to improve facilities, the school will not be standing still and basking in former glories.

Hopefully the half termly newsletters, annual reports, photo archives and websites will enable a future commentator to update this history, as I have updated the 1965 version. 2047 has an appeal for the next edition, at five hundred years from foundation, though in that year, at ninety two, I am unlikely to be its author!

ROBERT WILLIAMS

Pictured at the school celebration evening in November 2007. He is holding the commemorative plaque presented in memory of his namesake.

The Sports Hall

ICT development?

Traditions retained.

Uniform changes—blazers come back.

OLDEST AND YOUNGEST

The oldest and youngest students in the school at the time of writing this book (May 2008), representing the full range of ages from 11 to 19.

Top:

The youngest girl was year 7 student Bethany Gibbon; the oldest was year 13 A level student Charlotte Sternberg

Bottom:

*The youngest boy was year 7 student Harry Tate-Smith; the oldest was A-level student Martin Blake. A look back to the chapter on Mr T A Williams' headship will reveal Harry's grandfather, Tim Tate Smith, in the photograph of The Comedy of Errors cast (1946).*